It's a great time to own a Sandler® franchise. Our economy needs additional sales from companies in order to spur growth. And in order to generate those sales, you need good quality people — well-trained, capable of servicing the client's needs. What better system than Sandler to do that?

TAP INTO A $59.7 BILLION INDUSTRY*

A recent industry report paints a positive picture for sales training professionals. Despite a less than stellar business environment, total 2011 U.S. training expenditures were up 13%, to $59.7 billion, with 32% of respondents reporting that their training budgets had increased. In 2011, spending on outside products and services, defined as external vendors and consultants, jumped more than $2 billion to $9.1 billion.

As a Sandler Training® Franchise Owner, you are perfectly positioned to capitalize on this rapidly growing market and reap the rewards, on your own terms, with your own franchise business.

*trainingmag.com, November/December 2011

The training expenditures include payroll and spending on external products and services. The training budget figure was calculated by projecting the average training budget to a weighted universe of companies, using the Dun & Bradstreet counts of U.S. organizations with more than 100 employees.

These figures include all products, services, technologies, off-the-shelf and custom content, and consulting services.

THE SANDLER ADVANTAGE: RECURRING REVENUE STREAMS

Our tiered business model, based on reinforcement, gives our Franchise Owners the opportunity to garner recurring income from a wide array of client services.

Sales Mastery is the backbone of the Sandler Training® business model. Franchise Owners begin their business by offering public training to front line salespeople, business owners, and managers in a public forum. Sales Mastery can jump start and then sustain your business by providing loyal clients and business referrals.

We can compete with any sales training organization and walk away with a win because of the depth of experience and expertise we have throughout the organization.”

Matt Neuberger

Sandler Training® Franchise Owner

Franchise Owners can build their business offering private sales and management training at the client's location. Over time, you can expand your services throughout the organization and take on more of a business consultant role.

Sandler Training® Franchise Owners also serve as an important network of referrals with companies that have multiple locations and need training in your area.

Sandler Training's Global Accounts Division can help Franchise Owners service and support large multinational corporations with multiple locations. Sandler has international reach with a local touch.

Most Sandler Training Franchise Owners begin their business drawing on their existing contacts in the business world. At this point, your business can be conducted from a home office, networking with your circle of contacts.

As you take on clients for your Sales Mastery —typically six months after you start—you can rent office space to conduct your public training and perhaps add an administrative support person. Then as you grow, you can add additional trainers and staff to support the business. This scalable business model gives you the flexibility to start in business without significant cash outlays.
